

Christmas Bird Count in progress

The Christmas Bird Count is an annual bird census that takes place across North America to track winter bird populations and distributions. This project is made possible by thousands of volunteers who count all birds seen or heard within a 24-km circle on one day between Dec 14 and Jan 5. This project is coordinated in Canada by Birds Canada, a registered charity for bird research, Citizen Science, education, and conservation.

For any questions regarding this project, please contact the Canadian CBC Coordinator by email at cbc@birdscanada.org.

For more information on this project, visit: www.birdscanada.org